Historical Note:

The Office of Campaign and Political Finance came into being in 1973 with the creation of the post of Director of Campaign and Political Finance (St 1973, c 1173). The director through this office administers the laws of the Commonwealth regulating political campaigns (MGLA c 55), an area which had previously been within the jurisdiction of the state secretary. As provided by the 1973 act currently amended, the director of the office is chosen by unanimous vote of a commission made up of the state chair of each political party, the state secretary (who chairs the commission), and a dean of a law school located in the Commonwealth appointed by the governor. The director, who must be a resident of Massachusetts, holds office for six years and during this time cannot engage in any political activities or hold other public office.
